DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election with traverse of Group II (claims 8-11) in Applicants' response filed April 22, 2004 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the grounds that claims 1-13 are sufficiently related that a through and complete search for the subject matter of the elected claims would necessarily encompass a through and complete search for the subject matter of the non-elected claims and that therefore, a search and examination of the entire application could be made without serious burden. This is not found persuasive because the examiner who made the restriction requirement has shown that the subject matter of the three groups encompass three different statutory classes of invention each having a different classification. For purposes of the initial requirement of a restriction, a serious burden on the examiner may be prima facie shown if the examiner shows by appropriate explanation either separate classification, separate status in the art, or a different field of search as defined in MPEP § 808.02.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
3. Claim 9 recites the limitation "A mesoporous silica composite material according to claim 8, wherein said mesoporous silica has a particulate form or a filmy form". This limitation makes the claim indefinite since independent claim 8 recites that the mesoporous silica is deposited on a porous substrate, and therefore it is unclear how the mesoporous silica can be in a “particulate form”, if it is already in a “filmy” form (e.g. deposited on a porous substrate).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 8-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chaudhari, Karuna et al., Electron Spin Resonance Investigation on the Location and Reducibility of Zirconium in Mesoporous Zr-MCM-41 Molecular Sieves, Journal of Physical Chemistry B, Vol. 104, No. 47, November 2000 (Chaudhari et al.) in view of US 6,274,207 (Balkus Jr., et al.).

Chaudhari teaches a zirconium containing mesoporous MCM-41 molecular sieve (zirconium containing mesoporous silica), wherein the Zr element is in the form of Si-O-Zr and at a level of 2 molar percent (see abstract and page 11073). Chauduri further teaches that that the pore volume is from 27 to 31 angstroms (2.7 to 3.1 nm) (page 11068) and the pore volume ranges from 0.51 to 1.05 cc/g (See table 1 on page 11067). Chauduri fails to teach or suggest that the zirconium containing mesoporous silica film is on a porous substrate.

Balkus Jr teaches that high quality molecular sieves made of MCM-41 thin films (mesoporous silica) may conventionally be deposited on a porous substrate (col. 1 and 2.).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at time of the invention to deposit the zirconium containing mesoporous silica disclosed by Chaudhari on to a porous substrate because the Balkus reference discloses that it is conventional do so for the same purpose (e.g. molecular sieve). With regard to the claimed alkali resistance, it is expected that the disclosed material would exhibit this property, since it is the same material as that claimed by applicants.
